

Frances Bell

I am a parent governor and a primary school teacher with 10 years experience, having spent the majority of that time teaching Year 1 in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire. I qualified at Nottingham Trent University with a degree in Psychology with Educational Development, followed by a PGCE. I have a keen interest in special educational needs, and am currently completing a number of courses focusing on neurodiversity in education. I hope to complete my masters degree in the near future.

I live in Burton, am married, and have a son who attends Newton Solney Infant School. I am currently enjoying a career break to spend time renovating our Edwardian home.
